

WELL Building Standards AND St. Paul's Groundbreaking Endeavor

Launched in October of 2014, the WELL Building Standard is a people-centric approach to building and design. International WELL Building Institute European Director of Operations Ann Marie Aguilar states that “Our environment is changing how we live and work. From our changing views and exposure to nature to how food is produced and packaged and how we get around within offices, our physical and social environment has a huge impact on our health.” Moreover, our health and wellbeing directly correlate with our job performance.
